Advisors: Professors Joseph Beck and Robert Traver, Nick Riart

Background
- Professional etiquette is neglected in both high schools and colleges\(^1\),\(^3\)
- There have been efforts to incorporate etiquette into college classes\(^2\)
- Schools often don’t have money to educate students in professionalism\(^2\)

Objectives
- Introduce etiquette at the high school level
- Give teenagers experience before college

Future Plans
- Present to freshmen later this week
- Addition of more videos to increase range
- Analysis of video success by monitoring YouTube

Process
- Create Videos
- Send to YouTube
- Views
- Present to Group
- Data

Proposed Data Collection
- Compare each teen’s initial handshake and final handshake
- Collect opinions

Conclusions
- Developing professional skills early leads to more opportunities in college and careers
- Video is an far-reaching medium for professional development
