BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Mildred Tymeson Petrie was born in 1912 in Knowlton, Quebec. She was an author who played an essential role in documenting the history of Worcester, MA. She was the daughter of Rodney H. and Sayde M. (Lanphear) McClary. She graduated from Atlantic Union College in 1933 and received her Master of Arts Degree in Musicology from Boston University in 1947. After college, Tymeson lived in Ohio, Washington D.C., Holden, MA and finally Sarasota, Florida.

In 1962, President Harry P. Storke asked Mrs. Tymeson to write the history of WPI's first 100 years. She accepted the challenge and thoroughly researched WPI's history by conducting interviews and visiting the college archives. She published Two Towers: The Story of Worcester Tech, 1865-1965 in 1965. Mrs. Tymeson also established the Two Tower Award at WPI which is considered one of the most prestigious student awards. She contributed significantly to the WPI Archives and Special Collections.

Mrs. Tymeson's passion for researching and writing led to the publication of 24 books mainly on history and biography. In 1953, she published The Norton Story which documented the history of the Norton Company in Worcester, MA. She also wrote an industry movie, "Old as the Hills," about The Norton Company.

On November 11, 1995, Mildred Tymeson Petrie died at the age of 83. At the time of her passing, Mrs. Petrie left her husband of 28 years, George W. Petrie III, and a nephew.

Note about organization of this collection: This collection was processed in two parts. The first, and larger, part of the collection was believed at the time to be all of the materials in the collection. The materials in Part 2 were found in a different location at a later time. For this reason, and because most of the materials are quite different in the two parts, the finding aid is separated by parts, with Scope and Content Notes for each and with a somewhat different organizational system for each.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Mildred M. Tymeson Papers span the years 1962-1994. The primary components of this collection revolve around Mrs. Tymeson's research for her books, The Two Towers and The Norton Story.

Mrs. Tymeson compiled notes and interviews of people involved in the formation of Worcester Tech. These research files are arranged alphabetically by subject. Correspondence between Mrs. Tymeson and Worcester Tech from 1967-1994 is also included in this collection. Most of this correspondence discusses the establishment of the Two Towers Award and her financial contributions to the WPI Special Collections and Archives. These files are arranged chronologically.

This collection also contains research notes and interviews related to the Norton Company. These research files are arranged alphabetically by subject. Mrs. Tymeson collected many books about the Norton Company which were created to commemorate milestones in the company's history. These books are arranged chronologically.

This collection also contains published and non-published materials which Mrs. Tymeson authored or edited. These items are arranged alphabetically by title. Mrs. Tymeson also kept a substantial number of publications that she did not write or edit. These materials are included in the miscellaneous series along with photographs, newspaper clippings and WPI mementos.

Due to the extent and variety of the Tymeson papers, WPI archivists managed this collection in three separate stages, resulting in two distinct methods of organization and description. The second section of this finding aid, beginning with Series 9, Box 12, shows the change in method.

Series 9 of the second part of the Mildred M. Tymeson papers includes her writings, both manuscripts and publications. Box 12 contains church, short story, and article manuscripts and the first half of Box 13 contains excerpts and quotations from various sources and people. The second part of Box 13 contains Tymeson's publications. A few of these publications include This is Worcester, a brief illustrated history of the city, "But One Lamp," an article for the Massachusetts Dental Society Centennial, and "Paul Revere," a brief historical presentation for the Worcester Art Museum.

Series 10 comprises Tymeson's research materials and notes pertaining to her publications. Boxes 14 through 17 contain research of the general history of the city of Worcester including various companies, events, notable people, and stories; Box 18 is her research for This is Worcester and for the Massachusetts Dental Society Centennial article. Box 19 contains research for the presentation on Paul Revere for Worcester Art Museum. This box also includes a small folder of research on the history of Swedish people in the northeast during the 18th century.

Also in Series 10, in Boxes 20 and 21, is a compilation of Tymeson's papers involving the International Management Congress and the creation of a motion picture about the history and development of management practices. This followed Tymeson's work on the Norton Company film, and there are references to that film. Included are meeting agendas and minutes, research about the history of management practices, and correspondence pertaining to the progress and review of the motion picture research, ideas, and scripts.

Series 11 is comprised of a variety of materials, including notes from Mrs. Tymeson's high school, college and graduate school courses, some writings by her and others, and photographs. Series 12, Box 23 contains two scrapbooks Mrs. Tymeson kept.
